Woodstock sticks with 'Bird Hill,' old culverts

By ALISON ALOISIO

A proposal to make more room for the dead was the only article that survived Tuesday night's special Town Meeting in Woodstock.

About three dozen voters turned down articles that would have changed the name of the Bird Hill Road, and provided funds to fix a culvert on the Concord Pond Road.

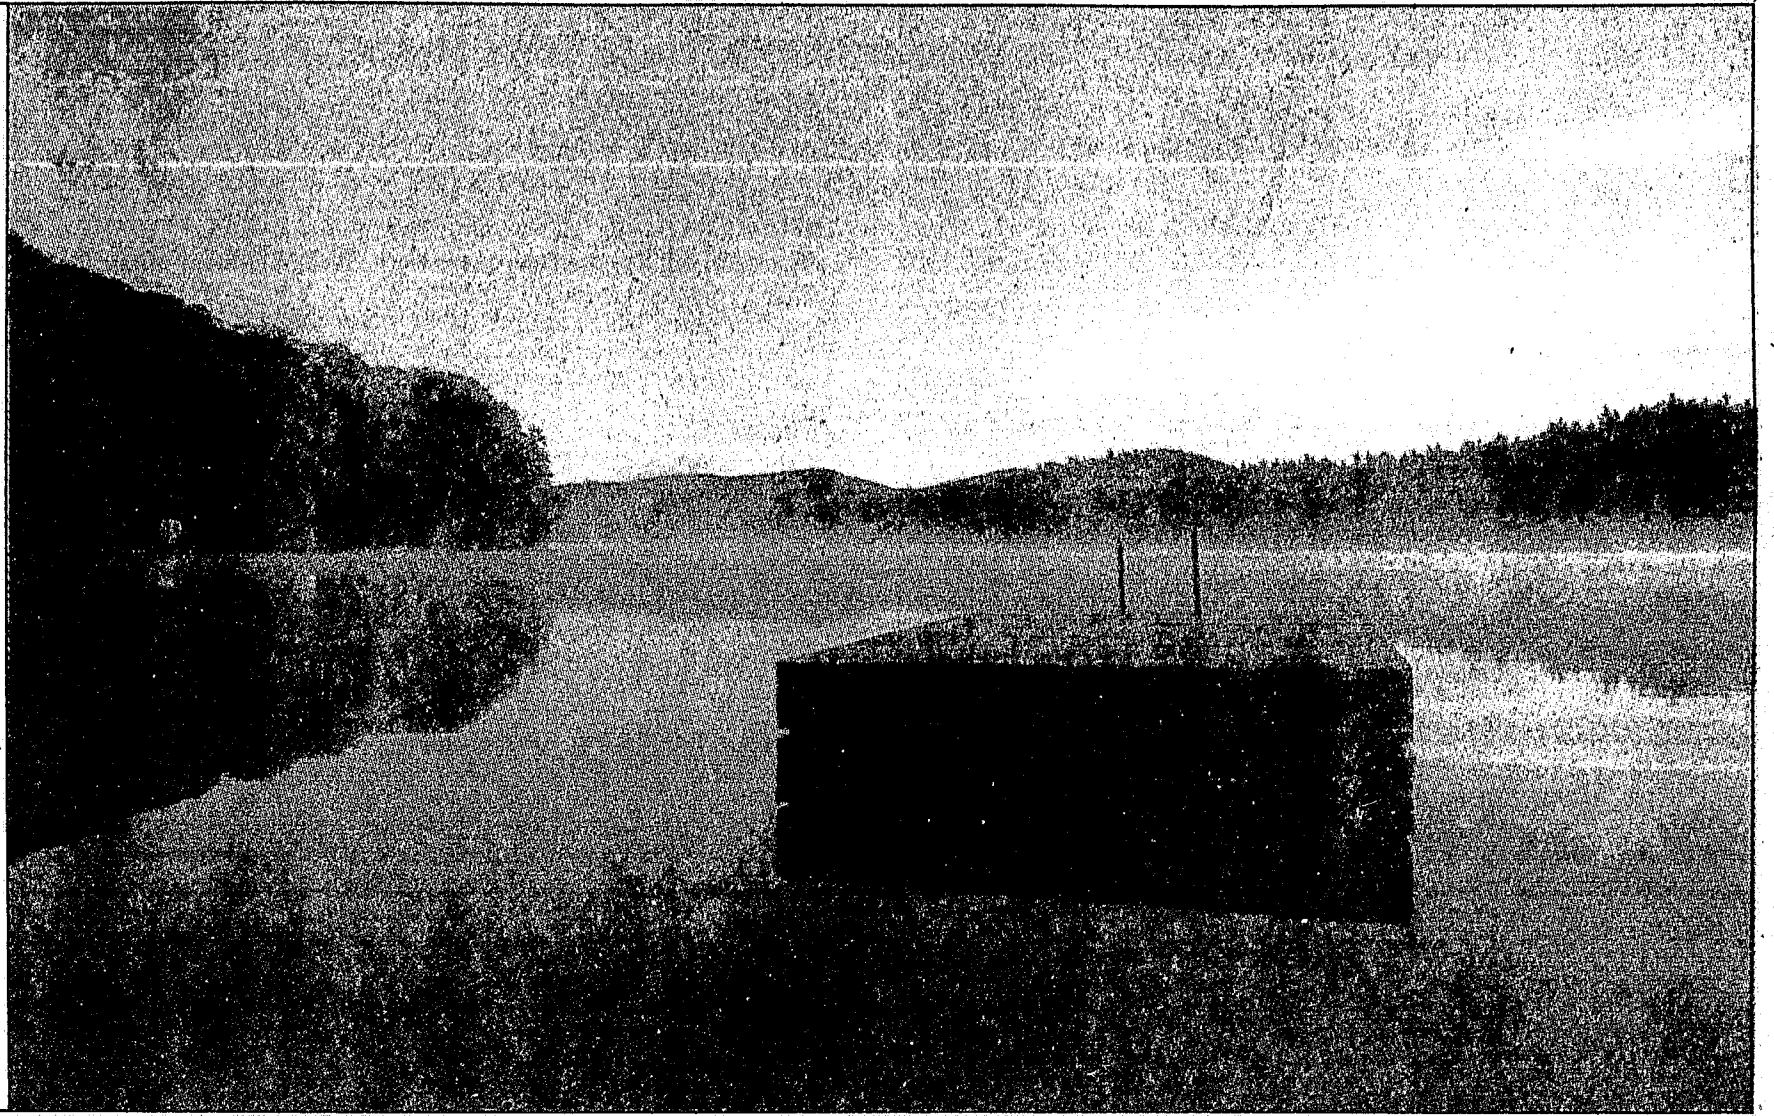

Townpeople voted to put off a decision on spending $5,000 to fix the culvert until the regular Town Meeting in March.

The three-culvert unit, located on a curve in the road, is deteriorating. Resident Jay Bernard said the situation violates Department of Environmental Protection regulations, because the shoulder of the road is breaking down and washing into the Concord River.

There is also a safety issue, he said, because drivers are essentially going over a bridge while taking a turn. The stretch of road is also narrow.

STILL MORNINGS AND CHILLY TEMPERATURES announced the arrival of fall this week. Here, the morning fog lifts from South Pond, and the Greenwood town beach float awaits a ride to its winter home.

State OKs Rite Aid traffic plan But suggests fine tuning roads around Bethel Station

By ALISON ALOISIO

It's clear that a Rite Aid store would generate its own set of traffic changes near Bethel Station -- but the state's portion of the approval process is raising other traffic issues associated with Bethel Station.

The Bethel Planning Board met last night to further consider the application by Blue Hill Management Corp. developers to put a store at the intersection of Route 2 and the Parkway.

But on Tuesday, Maine Department of Transportation officials had their own go at the proposal. Their meeting with developers was also attended by two Planning Board members and planning assistant Nancy Schlieper.

Bethel's first traffic light?

Roland Roy, MDOT traffic engineer, said he anticipates that at some point in the future a traffic signal will be installed at the intersection. "A signal is probably going to happen sooner or later," he said.

Before it does, Roy said, it was important to "clean up the messy situation we have here."

'A signal will probably happen sooner or later.'

ROLAND ROY, MDOT engineer, on the prospect for a traffic light at the west end of the parkway

He came to Bethel to observe traffic at the intersection recently, and found that many drivers turning left onto the Parkway from Route 2 turned into the lane for oncoming traffic on the Parkway, mistaking it for their own lane.

He also described the intersection as currently having "a lot of zigzag activity," due to traffic headed between the Bottle & Bag and the Parkway.

To deal with traffic at the proposed site for the immediate future, MDOT directed Rite Aid to install a six-inch-high, four-foot-wide median strip at the end of the Parkway, as well as in the entrance/exit to the store's parking lot, to help channel turning traffic.

The developers must also set up and pave, on their property, a potential access to the adjacent Bottle & Bag parking lot. Such an access would eliminate the need for drivers who want to patronize both businesses from having to drive out into the main road to get next door.

Developers had offered to put the access through to the Bottle & Bag, but said the Bottle & Bag owners would not agree to it. MDOT traffic engineer Roland Roy, however, directed that Rite Aid do its part in case B&B has a change of heart.

Schlieper also pointed out that customers of Pat's Pizza, located diagonally across from the Rite Aid site, sometimes park along Route 2 when Pat's parking lot is full -- creating another hazard near the intersection.

New film series will present work of independent directors

By MICHAEL DANIELS

There's a premier treat in store for Bethel movie lovers. Starting next Friday they won't have to leave town -- or wait for the videotape -- to see critically acclaimed films by small, independent filmmakers.

The Casablanca Independent Film Series begins Oct. 6, with the showing of Victor Nunez's "Ulee's Gold." Each film in the series will run for one week a month, playing at the theater's usual times and prices.

The series is the brainchild of Alice Arlen of Bryant Pond, who lived for a number of years in Waterville and enjoyed watching independent and foreign films at the Railroad Square Cinema.

The series is being produced with the cooperation and support of Rob James of the Casablanca. Vicki Rackcliffe and the Mahosuc Arts Council are assisting with publicity.

The idea for the series, Arlen said, is to provide current, crowd-pleasing films that will win the support of the local movie-going public. The series is being presented on a one-year trial basis. "It all depends on people showing up," Arlen said.

"Ulee's Gold" stars Peter Fonda and Patricia Richardson and was one of the most acclaimed films at this year's Sundance Film Festival. According to one critic, "The triumph of this bittersweet family drama is Peter Fonda's performance, which by way of its languorous understatement eerily recalls his father, Henry."

Other films scheduled for the series include: "Mondo" (Oct. 31-Nov. 6), "Shall We Dance" (January), and "Stranger in the Kingdom" (March 6-12).

Films for April and May will be selected at a later date. Film lovers with suggestions (or questions) are encouraged to call Arlen at 665-2130.

Gould 1997 Alumni Weekend

The Gould Academy Alumni Association will host Alumni Weekend 1997 on Sept. 26-28, 1997.

In addition to the Alumni Association's annual awards presentation and meeting, highlights of the weekend's festivities will include the fourth annual Frank Vogt Fun Run; an informal nine-hole scramble at the Bethel Inn and Country Club; a fall foliage canoe trip; a hard hat tour of the new dining hall; and Peek from a Peak -- chairlift ride to the top of Sunday River's Locke Mountain.

For information on these and other events, contact the Office of Development and Alumni Relations at Gould Academy at (207) 824-7707.

A complete schedule of Alumni Weekend events can be found on page two of this week's Citizen.

PULLING THE PLUG--The Bethel Water District recently replaced a hundred-year-old fire hydrant on Broad Street as part of the district's system improvement project. The hydrant was installed by the R.D. Wood company of Philadelphia in 1890. Wood supplied all the pipe material for the town's original water system. This hydrant has been very reliable, according to Bob Saunders, BWD superintendent. "It was used last week to provide protection for the razing of the Drummond barn," he said. "It did good duty right to the very end." The hydrant is shown here shortly before it was removed.

Andover man finds restorative value in junkers

By ALISON ALOISIO

When Leon Simmons of Andover takes his camper to Florida each winter, he has to drive the 1,500-mile route one-handed.

"The other hand is on the CB to all the truckers," he says.

That's because the big-rig drivers want to know why the cab of Simmons' camper comes from a 1941 logging truck.

The camper is one of dozens of vehicles Simmons has built, restored or otherwise fixed up.

He has always tinkered on cars, but he's had more time to spend on his wide variety of vehicles since retiring from the U.S. Coast Guard in 1985.

"A lot of people specialize in antique cars, or street rods, or trucks. I like anything on wheels," he said.

The barn behind his house is testimony to that. Inside are a 1967 Camaro, a 1956 Chevrolet pickup truck (painted bright orange), a 1960 Morris Minor (an English postal van) and dozens of car doors, hoods and other assorted parts to all makes of vehicles. He's also fixed up Cadillacs and Mercedes.

Simmons has owned as many as 17 cars at a time, and has sold about 15 over the years. He's also shown them in car shows from Florida to Canada.

Simmons has always been partial to Chevrolets, he said. In fact, the first car he restored was a 1930 Chevrolet. It didn't need much work. "I was the third owner. It was in good shape. I just did some painting and reupholstering.

Taking a dare

It was a different story with a 1957 Chevrolet convertible. He found what was left of the car in a swamp in Athol, Mass. "I brought it home in three pieces," he said. "It was the toughest (project) because there was so little to start with."

He might never have started at all, but for a comment by a friend. "You'll never see that on the road," the friend said.

Said Simmons, "I did it on his dare because I was told I couldn't do it. Plus I really wanted a '57 Chevy convertible."

"I got some parts for it in a junkyard, some new parts, and I made other parts," he said.

He built the frame himself, for example. He put a 1989 Chevrolet engine in the car, for the sake of convenience of repairs.

Does such a conglomeration of parts raise a few eyebrows among car fancying purists?

Yes, said Simmons, but that doesn't bother him. "To each his own," he said.

Simmons finds his project cars everywhere. "People's backyards are the best source," he said.

People who know he works on old cars also tell him about vehicles. "They'll say, 'I was down in such and such a place and guess what I saw in the woods.' Loggers will often see cars in the woods," he said.

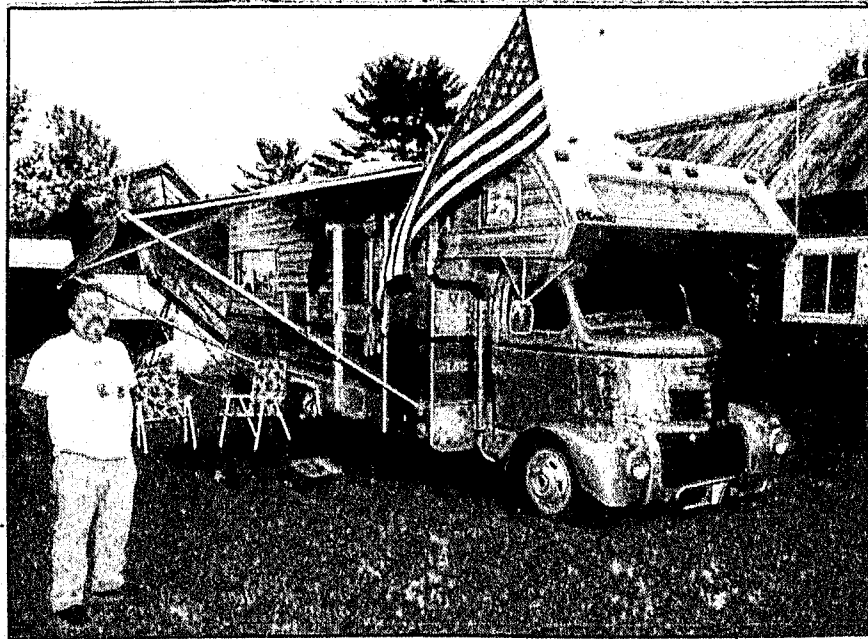

The logging-camper was a relatively recent project. About two years ago, Simmons got the idea he'd like to create a camper with an old cabover, as they're called.

He found a 1941 cab in Rome, Maine, and bought it for $400. "She was pretty rusty," said Simmons. "I worked steady on it for three or four months."

After fixing the cab, he joined it to his 1978 camper. Now, he and his cat, Garfield, spend most of their time there, whether it's in Florida or his backyard in Andover.

Simmons is now in the process of

Azarian works at Gould

The Owen Art Gallery at Gould Academy will host a show of wood-block prints by Vermont artist Mary Azarian. Azarian, a graduate of Smith College, has been a printmaker for nearly thirty years. Among her best-known works is the children's book, A Farmer's Alphabet, inspired by her childhood on a farm in Virginia and her experiences as a teacher in a one-room schoolhouse in rural northern Vermont. The show begins with a gallery opening on Friday, Sept. 26 from 7 to 9 p.m., in conjunction with Gould's Alumni Weekend celebration. The public is invited to attend the opening, or to view the show at the gallery through Nov. 7. Prints of Azarian's work will be available for sale. The Owen Art Gallery is open to the public at no charge, weekdays from 8 a.m. to 3 p.m. For weekend hours or further information, please call 207-824-7700.

WE ARE ALL LIVING CREATURES

To the Editor:

Today, Sunday, I witnessed a cat struck by a car as it dashed across Route 26 near the Douglass Place. Although the car slowed for an instant, it quickly sped away, leaving a badly injured animal thrashing in the road. Unable to reach the animal control officer, I called Gary Stuer at the Bethel Animal Hospital who immediately offered to open his office and who treated the cat with great compassion. The cat was not able to survive, but was spared a long, agonizing death by the side of the road. Dr. Stuer refused to accept money for his services rendered so quickly on a Sunday morning.

If you hit an animal on the road, please stop and try to locate its owner, or the police, or a game warden. We are all living creatures on this earth with our lives interconnected. We need to assume responsibility for one another, human or animal.

The Douglass family and Gary Stuer certainly did their part that morning. Let us make sure we do ours.

WHITMAN LIBRARY FUNDRAISING

To the Editor:

The first major fundraising event for the Whitman Memorial Library was a great success. Funds raised by the Get-Togethers at the McLeans of Bryant Pond have made a good dent in the $20,000 needed to meet the matching funds which are part of the grant received from the Stephen and Tabitha King Foundation. The Whitman Memorial Library recently received an outright grant of $40,000 for the expansion of the historic building. An additional matching $20,000 will be awarded if the people of Woodstock can raise that sum by July of 1998. To date the fundraising efforts have raised $940. Construction is slated to begin in the spring of 1998.

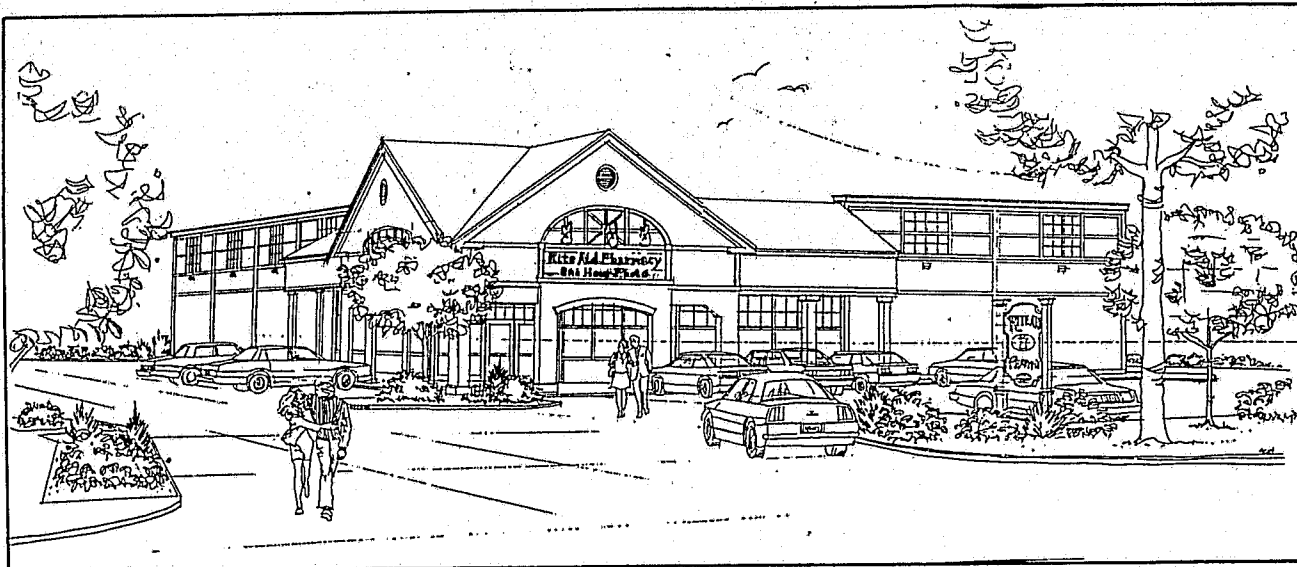

Other events currently being planned for the Matching Funds Drive include: ballroom dancing lessons at the Greenwood Town Hall; memorial and gift cards available at Woodstock Town Hall and the Whitman Memorial Library; Halloween Party for adults, Oct. 25; a dance on Nov. 15, Christmas Sale. A mail campaign is also underway.

All are welcome to assist in making the Whitman Memorial Library expansion a success. For information on how you can help, please call 665-2788 or the Woodstock Town Office.

Rite Aid

THE RITE DESIGN--Developers of a proposed Rite Aid store on Route 2 recently submitted this updated design of the building to the Bethel Planning Board. The board was scheduled to further consider the project application at last night's regular meeting.

MDOT will offer the town "No Parking" signs to be placed at that location to correct the situation.

Roy said while he did not particularly like the setup of the intersection, it would be workable. He did not see a need for a traffic study beyond the one already done by developers.

"Everyone wants to be seen"

Roy also said that ideally, the Parkway should simply be extended across Route 2 into the Rite Aid property, and access to any businesses built off it.

But what might be considered best for safety and aesthetics is in conflict with what many business owners want, said Rite Aid project traffic engineer Bill Eaton.

Businesses prefer to have their own driveway providing direct access from the main road, and they want the high visibility such a location provides, he said.

Rite Aid did not consider going into Bethel Station because, he said, the store did not want to be located on an interior road or be in a location where its layout might be restricted.

Roy conceded that was the reality. "Everyone wants to be seen," he said.

Mechanic extension questioned

Roy told Schlieper and the board members that he had also noticed the Mechanic Street extension toward Bethel Station did not line up directly across from the end of Mechanic Street -- creating a jog across Railroad Street.

That, he said, was in violation of MDOT's requirement at the time of the road's approval.

But Boyd Snowden, engineer on the project for A.E. Hodsdon, said while the right of ways for the roads are out of line, the roads themselves will line up. The layout was discussed and approved by Bethel officials about a year ago, he said.

Ethics looking to the Web

By MIKE BROWN

Maine's new ethics commission has had a couple of meetings following the revamping of the commission into a five-member, governor-appointed body.

Its last meeting concerned only a few items on its agenda and much discussion how the commission will proceed with new ethics laws, primarily the Clean Elections Act and how to bring the ethics commission office and staff into the electronics age.

One complaint considered the ongoing problem and reporting violation with Concerned Maine Families Political Action Committee. CMF has been asked to report its transactions in proper format. CMF failed to comply and the staff referred the matter to the attorney general's office for enforcement. CMF also failed to reply to the AG's inquiries. Commissioner Merle Nelson wanted the matter resolved in a "time certain" by the attorney general.

Another matter involved the Committee to Elect Annette Hoglund (CEAH). The ethics staff found that CEAH had staged a number of beano games to raise funds in support of Hoglund's Portland candidacy. And that she had reported to the Dept. of Public Safety the amount raised and spent in staging the games and required by statutes.

However, the state auditor by staff request is apparently reviewing those reports by Hoglund. The staff requested the audit to ascertain whether Hoglund had disclosed the net results from the beano games, what portion of the net collected was reportable under campaign finance laws and whether CEAH fully complied with these laws. The matter was tabled until the commission's next meeting when the audit would be available.

An agenda item concerned actions brought by the Maine Right to Life Committee and a potential violation of the legislative ethics law. Interim commission counsel assistant AG Paul Stern said the matters were confidential and the commission voted to go into executive session.

Some 45 minutes later the commission reconvened in open session and the commission directed the staff to contact the unnamed legislator whose conduct was in question and to invite the legislator to appear at its next regular meeting and respond to the commissioner's questions. It was not indicated whether those questions, the legislator and commissioners would go into secret session at that time.

In another item, Carol Palesky requested that the commission audit the campaign finance reports of the Maine Citizens for Responsible Government (MCRG). Palesky alleged in her letter that the reports of MCRG contained significant discrepancies.

Commission staff director Marilyn Canavan said the staff found no basis for Palesky's claims and no violation of campaign finance laws. The commission voted to deny Palesky's request for an audit.

Director Canavan asked the commission to consider her request for an amendment to the legislative ethics law. She wanted more stringent procedures for handling delinquent of late legislator income statements. The change would include that penalties be assessed for lateness "whether or not the delinquent is deemed to be willful."

The Clean Elections Act has a provision for the electronic filing of reports. However, the commission staff office is severely lacking in automation for filing and for public access disclosures usually requiring a visit to the ethics office and pouring over hard-copy files for the public information contained therein.

The commission seemed eager to proceed with automation and a web-based system allowing filers to report information from a remote location. There was some concern from Commissioner Merle Nelson as to whether "it might be an invasion of an individual's right to know everything there is to know about a person (legislator/public official)."

Nelson said, "The commission must be careful not to drive people out of office in its eagerness to enhance public disclosure."

Longtime legal counsel for the ethics commission, assistant AG Cabanne Howard, will not continue with that assignment and the commission has requested that AG Andrew Ketterer "be involved in selecting a successor." Actually, the AG unilaterally assigns commission counsel from the AG's staff. Assistant AG Paul Stern will serve as interim counsel until a permanent appointment is made.

Apparently, the commission will continue its dependence on the attorney general's office for legal services and counsel rather than having an independent counsel as many have recommended over the past years.

Lavalette pleads guilty in Bay State

PITTSFIELD, MASS.--Former Greenwood Town Manager Elizabeth Lavalette has pleaded guilty to stealing $58,000 from the town of West Stockbridge, while she was town treasurer, and to stealing $1,000 from a Boy Scout troop she worked with in the western Massachusetts community. Lavalette also faces charges in Maine that she stole $20,000 from the town of Greenwood while employed from April to December 1996 as its first town manager. Her husband, Richard, has been charged with receiving stolen money from Greenwood and depositing it in their bank account. The Lavalettes have pleaded innocent to the Maine charges.

Road woes threaten hotel opening

NEWRY--According to the Newry code enforcement officer, the planned December opening of the new luxury hotel in Sunday River's Jordan Bowl is being threatened by continuing problems with the new, 3.5 mile road being built to service the hotel and other ski facilities in the bowl area. The road construction project has been plagued since early spring by erosion problems, and now Newry CEO Norm Putnam has told town selectmen that other problems could result in his withholding a certificate of compliance for the road. Those problems include overly steep slopes, crushed culverts and the use of boulders in place of guardrails, according to Putnam. Sunday River Managing Director Dan Seme acknowledged at this week's selectmen's meeting that the resort has its own list of issues to be addressed regarding the road. He said later, however, that they were the sorts of issues to be expected with a project of this scale, that the resort was working closely with Putnam on them, and that he (Seme) was confident they would be resolved in time for the hotel to open on schedule.

Timetable set for path

BETHEL--Supporters of a proposed pedestrian, bike, snowmobile path through Bethel Station are now hoping to have a groundbreaking as early as June 1998. The path is being funded by an "enhancement grant" from the Maine Department of Transportation. The grant has proved insufficient for the construction of the snowmobile bridge included in the grant application, but Town Manager Phil Tarr told the Bethel Area Trails Coalition this week that he believes MDOT will allow funds originally intended for the bridge to be shifted toward the path. Tarr also presented a tentative nine-month schedule for getting the project to the point that MDOT will approve a construction contract. The snowmobile bridge now appears to be on hold until at least the next two-year round of federal highway funding.

THS gets MEA results

BETHEL--MEA scores for this year's senior class at Telstar High School were within ranges expected for the makeup of the community in all subject areas but two. Ranges are determined by such factors as parent education and income. The scores are as follows, with the Telstar average first, followed by the expected range: reading, 325 (280-325); writing, 260 (245-290); math, 265 (270-315); science, 310 (300-345); social studies, 265 (245-290); arts and humanities, 320 (260-305). The scores exceeded the range in arts and humanities and fell just short in math. Principal Ted Davis said the staff plans to look at ways to improve the math scores. He characterized the math department's own testing as traditional, and said the tests may need to use open-ended questions similar to those on the MEAs. Open-ended questions are generally word problems that also ask students to explain their reasoning and method of solution.

Accreditation volunteers sought

BETHEL--Telstar High School is looking for parents of school students, as well as other interested community residents, to assist in a self-study currently being conducted by the school staff. The study is part of the evaluation process of the accreditation of the high school by the New England Association of Schools and Colleges. Areas to be evaluated include curriculum and instruction, support services, library technology and media services, administration, faculty and support staff, facilities, community support and involvement, financial support, school climate, and assessment of student learning and school performance. Anyone interested in volunteering should contact principal Ted Davis or teacher Pauline Applin at 824-2136.

Harrison man faces drug, gun charges

ERROL, N.H.--A four-month New Hampshire drug investigation has resulted in a Harrison man being charged with possession of marijuana with intent to distribute. Oscar Edwards, 48, also faces charges of driving while under the influence and being a felon in possession of firearms. Edwards, who is described as having an extensive criminal record, was stopped Sept. 10 by Errol police chief Dana Hinkley and a subsequent search of his van yielded seven pounds of marijuana.

Optometrists here this weekend

BETHEL--More than 100 optometrists and their families are expected in Bethel this weekend, for a Continuing Education Conference sponsored by the Maine Optometric Association. The visitors are staying at the Bethel Inn, but are expected to also be dining and shopping at other local businesses, according to Bethel optometrist Dr. Lennie Shaw. The conference, Shaw said, will focus on low vision and refraction.

Don't hold your breath for natural gas

PORTLAND--Maine homeowners who have high hopes of hooking up to natural gas pipelines planned in the state may have to wait longer than they anticipated. A State Planning Office report says new pipelines will serve industry and large commercial buildings before they are extended to residential customers' homes. And it appears that no more than 11 Maine communities have dense enough populations to support residential service. The report also contradicts the widely held notion that gas will lower energy costs, saying that natural gas is expected to remain more expensive than oil for the foreseeable future. "I think we've all tended to overstate what this means for the state," said Jim Connors of the planning office. "We've all been touting the benefits. But what the study shows is, we're a long way from a lot of people having access to natural gas." Natural gas provides about 1 percent of the energy used in Maine, but the figure could rise to nearly 20 percent within a decade, says Jim Coyne, one of the report's authors.

Hunting zone restructuring proposed

AUGUSTA--The Maine Department of Inland Fisheries and Wildlife is proposing for 1998 a major restructuring and consolidation of existing hunting zones for deer, moose, turkey and waterfowl hunting and wildlife management. MDIF&W is attempting to design a zoning system that meets management requirements while simplifying the boundary lines for sportsmen. Hunters would only need memorize one set of boundaries for all species they might pursue. The new zoning would also allow a greater number of any-deer permits to be issued within a given zone. Detailed maps of the newly proposed zones will be available at informational hearings, one of which is scheduled for 7 p.m., Oct. 2, at the University of Maine at Farmington.

Time for HEAP applications

PARIS--Appointments are now being made for residents of Androscoggin and Oxford counties for the Low-Income Home Energy Assistance Program starting Oct. 1. People applying for the program are reminded this is not an emergency program. Benefits are designed to supplement a household's winter fuel bill. Households that heat with gas, electricity, oil or wood are encouraged to apply, as are people with their heat included in their rental payment. An appointment may be made by calling 207-743-7716. Homebound individuals need to call for an appointment to have their application taken in their home.

From the Bethel Police log:

Driver summonsed for illegal plates

At 7:20 p.m. on Sept. 22 a subject was observed traveling north on Route 26 and operating in an erratic and suspicious manner. The vehicle was stopped. The driver admitted to illegally attaching plates from his truck to the car. Jason H. Corey, 23, of East Waterford, was summonsed, and the vehicle was towed.

Friday, Sept. 19

At 7:48 p.m. police responded to Cross Street for a report of a large fight in a parking lot. On arrival the fight had apparently ended, but approximately 50 to 75 local juveniles were loitering in the area and were requested to leave. Patrol in the area was increased until all was quiet.

At 10:45 p.m. a cashier at a business reported that a Bethel resident had entered the store, and after a few minutes he quickly exited with what appeared to be a 12-pack of beer under his jacket. The subject then re-entered the store and bought a 12-ounce can of beer. After the subject left again, the complainant looked in the cooler and thought a 12-pack of beer was missing, but he was unsure. About two hours later, the subject was located on Elm Street and found to be in possession of the beer. He was also found to be intoxicated. He failed field sobriety tests. Timothy A. Roberts, 26, of Bethel was arrested for OUI and taken to the Oxford County Jail. He was also charged with theft and consuming alcohol while operating a motor vehicle.

Saturday, Sept. 20

At 2:57 a.m. a subject was stopped on Route 26 for loud exhaust. He had a strong odor of liquor on his breath and was asked to submit to field sobriety tests, which he failed. Benjamin W. Hoyt, 21, of Groveton, N.H., was arrested for OUI. He was transported to the Oxford County Jail where he was given a breath test (result .19 percent) and held in lieu of bail.

From the

Bethel Conservation Commission

The Bethel Conservation Commission advises readers that now is the time to check out the wildflower identification signs -- new this year -- at the Mt. Will hiking and nature trail.

Before long, even the late-blooming wildflowers will be gone. During the spring and summer, over 70 different kinds of wildflowers have been located and marked -- most within about five minutes' walk of the trailhead in either the North Ledges or South Cliffs direction.

The signs are temporary and are taken down when a species stops blooming. It's too late for some interesting names like "pussytoes" and "Indian pipe," but not too late for "mouse ear," "pearly everlasting," and a number of others.

The Mt. Will trail starts directly opposite the Bethel transfer station on US Route 2, 1.9 miles east of the Riverside State Rest Area. Trail brochures are available at the Bethel Town Office and at the trailhead.

Woodstock

The short-term solution proposed was to extend the existing culverts to widen the road. Road foreman Percy Monk had suggested a longer-term remedy -- replace the three culverts with one large one. That, however, would cost about $10,000.

He described the plan to extend the culverts as a band-aid solution. "Band-aid after band-aid is going to catch up with you someday," he said. "I'd rather do it right."

Town manager Vern Maxfield said he leaned toward doing it the least expensive way, at least for the moment.

But the majority were not in the mood to do it at all -- at least for now. Several said there are other stretches of road in town in greater need than the Concord Pond Road, which is maintained only seasonally.

Rodney Chase said there are parts of County Road -- regularly traveled by school buses -- that need work. "More traffic goes over County Road in one night than Concord Pond sees in six months," he said.

Bernard said if there are roads in greater need, he would support fixing them first. "But please prioritize -- at least assign the Concord Pond Road a number," he said.

Selectman Elton Cole, who moderated the meeting, said town officials recently learned any work on the Concord Pond culvert might have to wait until spring, because beavers that built dams in the culverts would have to be relocated.

Most people then agreed it made sense to put the question on the warrant for the annual Town Meeting, and the article was voted down.

posed the change to avoid the risk of emergency personnel confusing it with Bird Hill Road in Greenwood. There are about six residences on the Woodstock road.

But several residents of the road saw no reason for a change.

Amy Smith said there had been a rescue call this past summer, and personnel knew exactly where to come. She suggested that if a change of name was needed, "let Greenwood do it."

Bill Seames, Woodstock fire chief, said there have been several fire calls on the road in recent history, "and we haven't gotten confused yet."

He said there are also fire lane sign numbers in the area.

The article was overwhelmingly defeated.

The only article approved Tuesday appropriated $5,000 to have some donated gravel hauled to prepare a portion of the Lakeside Cemetery for new cemetery lots.

The site where the gravel would be laid could be used to create an additional 150 plots, Maxfield said. The article passed easily.

"HONEST CORNER" at the top of Main Street in Bethel as it looked prior to 1906, probably in the 1890s. Gilman P. Bean's store is on the left (destroyed by fire in 1906), next are the businesses of Elmer Young's Harness Shop and Elmer Randall's Shoe Store (building demolished in the 1970s for a parking lot), followed by the Wiley Block, which is still serving as a drug store (now Preb's Pharmacy). Beyond is the home long occupied by Dr. Raymond and Pearl Ashby Tibbets, now owned by Karen Brown-Mohr. This photograph is but one of thousands owned by the Bethel Historical Society, which also possesses an outstanding collection of manuscripts, books, documents, and artifacts relating to western Maine and northern New Hampshire. The society is currently raising funds for its proposed Center for Local and Regional History on Broad Street, which will provide for improved storage and greater access to collections. selling off the dozen or so cars he has left -- including the convertible. How can he stand to part with it? "You can't keep them forever," he said simply. He's asking $28,000 for the convertible. One vehicle he will keep, besides the camper, is a 1937 Chevrolet coupe street rod, which he bought in 1990. "It drives real nice," Simmons said. "I've driven it more than any other vehicle (about 38,000 miles). I've been to the Midwest and Florida in it."

Simmons has no regrets about any of the vehicle projects he has taken on over the years.

"There has never been one I haven't enjoyed working on," he said.

Fall Foliage Flotilla

The Mahoosuc Land Trust's Friends of the Androscoggin Committee invites all canoe enthusiasts and interested people to join its annual Fabulous Fall Foliage Flotilla, a canoe trek from Gilead to Bethel on Saturday, Oct. 4. The trek is open to the public and will begin at 10 a.m. and will last approximately six hours. Canoeists who wish to join the trek are asked to register by calling 824-2410. Each participant must provide his/her own canoe and PFD (personal flotation devices) and bring their own lunch.

The friends of the Androscoggin is a grassroots organization in the Bethel area which works to raise awareness of the recreational potential of the Androscoggin River. Because the Mahoosuc Land Trust shared the goal of a clean river with Friends of the Androscoggin, the two organizations merged in 1996. The Friends of the Androscoggin became a committee of the Mahoosuc Land Trust.

Bethel

by Arlene Brown & Ginny Keniston

Mack Chapman has returned home after being a surgical patient at Stephens Memorial Hospital in Norway.

The Boy Scout Fall Camporee was held this past weekend at Riverside Campground. The boys from Snowshoe District attended, with Bethel boys as hosts. Gene and Lorraine Tanguay are the leaders for the Bethel boys. Canoeing, knots, outdoor cookery were enjoyed with a dramatic campfire in the evening. Ray Cooley led the canoe ride down the Androscoggin River from Gilead.

The United Methodist Women met Thursday evening with a potluck supper. Hostesses were Ginny Keniston and Barbara Mahler. A lovely program was presented by singers Nancy Fox, Nancy Hansen, Andrea Bennett accompanied by Judy Webster. The next meeting will be Thursday, Oct. 2, at which time Sue Howe will tell of her experiences in teaching and studying out West.

Jim Hutchins and friend Chris of Auburn were weekend guests of his parents, Tim and Lynn Hutchins.

The Fish and Game members met Thursday evening for a potluck supper at Betty Blake's camp at Songo Pond for their monthly meeting. There were 19 present.

The Eleanor Gordon Guild met last Monday at Betty Blake's camp at Songo Pond for a potluck supper. Election of officers for the new year were: president, Barbara Mahler; vice president, Muriel Butters; secretary, Betty Blake; treasurer, Mary Dooen.

Gould Academy alumni from the classes of '36, '37 and '38 will meet Friday, Sept. 26 at Town & Country Inn, Shelburne, N.H., for dinner and social time. Organizer for the function is "Hooty" Wentzell.

Bill and Vicky Myers are moving this weekend to their new home in Bryant Pond. Son Danny and family will move to their Vernon Street home.

Ada and "Pip" Cummings are spending the winter at the Chapman Inn as night attendants.

A gathering at the Keniston camp at Songo Pond on Saturday, Sept. 20, honored Abigail Bangs on her first birthday. She is the daughter of Glenn M. and Julie Bangs and the great-granddaughter of Bob and Ginny Keniston.

Clayton Crockett is a surgical patient at Maine Medical Center, Portland.

Jill Angevine, Mindy Cooley, Benedicte Fagan, Martha Grover, Kate Nickerson, Kristy Walker, and Shanna Walker were among the 20 Telstar High School seniors who volunteered at Mead's (paper company) Field Day at Mexico on Saturday, Sept. 20.

The first day of autumn saw a typical temperature of 35 degrees. The foliage is starting to be beautiful.

Dick Paine of Scarborough spent the weekend with his parents, Mary and "Bud" Paine.

Stan and Althea Brown visited their grandson and wife, Andrew and Alicia Benson, in Athens on Saturday.

The barn and ell of the Broad Street home of Joe and Joanna Drummond (former Merton Brown house) were demolished and burned last week. Renovations are being made to the main part of the building, and later the ell and a garage will be built.

Helen Robertson Cummings of Bethel, Yvette Richards McKenna and Pearl Daye Phillips of Rumford enjoyed lunch together at Teena's in Rumford last Thursday. The three were classmates at Gould, graduating in 1946.

A new fire hydrant has been installed at the corner of Broad and Mason streets, across from the courtyard of the Moses Mason house.

The barn at the John Amann home (former James' Alger house) is being raised for installation of a new foundation.

Six "girls" from the Gould Class of '39 gathered at the Moores' Tale for lunch last Thursday. Afterwards they went to Arlene Brown's where an enjoyable time was spent reminiscing and exchanging news. Attending were Helen Lowe Kraul and Sylvia Bird Hoey of Portland, Virginia Smith Hutchins, Mary Rice Keniston, Barbara Lyon Kuzyk, and Arlene Greenleaf Brown of Bethel.

Kurt and Tammy Brown of Windham were in town Sunday and helped his mother get some fall work done.

The Bethel House

Kathleen Hanscom and her daughter, Nancy Anderson, visited Amy Hanscom at the Rumford Community Home last Friday.

My records show that on Sept. 30, 1992, enough snow fell to make the ground white.

Sonny Cummings took Ruth Cummings to Dr. Daniels' office and then to St. Marys Hospital on Sept. 18 so she could have tests and get prepared for a cataract operation at St. Marys on Oct. 1.

Shannon Sumner was at the Bethel House recently giving residents the number of his beeper so he can be reached easier if needed.

Tim Fournier of Coastal Management was at the Bethel House this past week doing maintenance work. He is putting in fluorescent ceiling lights.

Lottie Knowles of Dixfield visited her sister, Eva Lane, at the Bethel House recently.

Rodney Hanscom, Barbara Gallant, and Jan Todd have all brought Ruth Cummings goodies from their gardens recently.

While waiting her turn at Dr. Daniels' office on the 18th, Ruth Cummings was surprised to see Jane and Bob Grover, former Bethel residents, come in. She enjoyed a nice visit with them. They are now living in Sumner.

Paul Bartlett of Locke Mills was a recent visitor of his mother, Helena Bartlett.

Ladies from the Bethel Alliance Church will put on their act, "Women of the Bible" at the Methodist Church in Rumford on Friday evening.

Judy and Nicole Gagnon of Cumberland Center, Tom Russell of Bryant Pond, and Margaret Quinlan were all recent callers of Irene Russell at the Bethel House recently.

West Paris

by Miriam Inman
West Paris Historical Society met Monday evening with 32 people in attendance. A potluck supper preceded the meeting. A report was given on the installation of the new electric-powered "outhouse."

All systems are go. Final plans were made for the harvest supper on Saturday, the 20th. The Parisians will furnish dance music after the supper. Sayward Lamb, Harlan Abbott and Ted Jones have put in quite a few hours at the society building. A video was shown by president Harlan Abbott of the old-fashioned equipment demonstrations at Scribner's Mills in Bolsters Mills.

We are hoping for an early return from the hospital of our neighbor Louvie Coffin.

Very sorry to hear of the resignation of our long-time librarian, Connie Bacon. She will be missed by many patrons of the library, especially the young children. She will be missed by all.

Our sincere sympathies are with De De Chase at this time. We received word that her companion, Ken Blodgett of West Peru, passed away. Many of us here in West Paris lost a good friend.

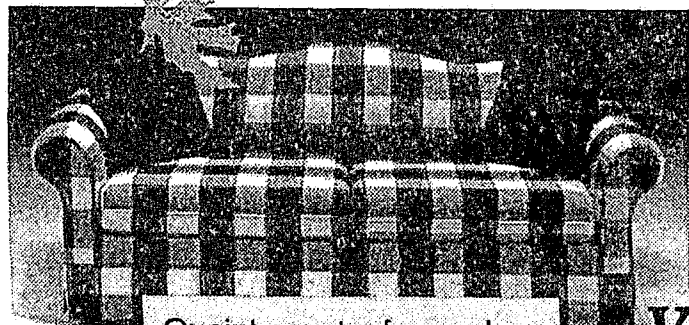

Vern and I really enjoyed going to Santa's Village on Sunday with our daughter, Vicky Sanborn, and grandchildren, Brant and Caroline.

Allen Lamb of Sante Fe, N.M., spent the past weekend with his mother, Joyce Lamb. He was in Massachusetts on company business thereby enabling him to come for a visit.

East Bethel

by Nancy Mercer

The Poiriers, I have heard, are moving from the home across from the Chap-pies because of the natural gas pipeline.

Peggy Coolidge is at CMMC in Lewiston. Exploratory surgery was done and an ulcer was found in the intestines. It is not known when she will be home. Her address is: Room 180, CMMC, Lewiston, ME 04240.

Polly Smith had Sunday dinner with Donna Bernard, Gary Smith and Wanda Howard in Mexico on Sept. 2.

Jack and Lucy Nordahl, with their daughter and her children of Groton, Mass., rented a camp on Vinalhaven Island and spent a week there.

The Nordahls went with Sonny and Bettyann Hastings to the Common Ground Fair in Windsor on Sept. 20.

Florence Hastings and Ann Morton of Hanover went to Fryeburg on Sept. 20 to pick cran-berries. They picked a lot of them.

Arlene Harrington will be a great-grandmother in November and again in March.

East Bethel lost another senior when Leland Coolidge passed away at his home on Sept. 17.

People on the South Rumford Road were told to stay away from Concerned Neighbors Against the Pipeline. We have a video that is all lies. The video is an actual newscast from Seattle, Wash.

The last Environmental Impact book came and shows that the pipeline will go behind Leland Coolidge's home. If there is a leak, will the fields be contaminated? If the fields are contaminated, will Bob Coolidge's cattle be contaminated from the grass or hay?

Stan Usovich has a condo in the area, according to the Bird Hill article in last week's Citizen. If so, where is this condo? There are several at Sunday River, but none in East Bethel that I know of.

I hope everyone read Clare Plawlock's letter in last week's Citizen. Do we really want all those contaminants in our ground water or in the air we breathe?

Arthur Hertell and Mary Bean were on the Songo River Queen on Sept. 20 for the Western Area Get-Away sponsored by Key Bank.

Monica Bean is home from Casco Bay College.

Correction: The Common Ground Fair will be moving to Unity next year. Thanks, Moe, that's what happens when I wait till the last minute to write my column. Monday was the first day of fall and the weather cooperated by dropping a few degrees. Last week I wore sleeveless attire to work and today it's the old woolies. I really hate to see winter coming upon us, so fast that both summer and winter clothes are spread all over. I have heard that some people actually rotate their clothes with the seasons and keep out only what is in season. When I finally find my summer blouses and shorts (two weeks ago), it's already time to put them away and get out the next batch of stuff.

Did you ever stop to think of how many things women have to put together to dress up for work? I counted no less than a dozen articles of clothing and accessories as I thought about getting "gussied" for a recent event where jeans would not be appropriate. After finding and strapping on the underthings that no one sees, one must find (and usually press) the overthings like tops and bottoms, then add matching belts, shoes, jewelry, handbags, (scarves, gloves and coats in winter). By the time you've put it all together you're too tired to go anywhere. I didn't even list the makeup items that most women use -- mascara, lipstick, cheek color, eye color and the foundation under it all. I've tried on several occasions to look like those women in the catalogs, but I don't really like myself in all the get-up and think that looking natural is better anyway. Now and then if I'm with other girls and we're all getting "duded" up to go somewhere, it is fun to play with clothes and makeup. However, usually I'm late or have stayed somewhere too long and need to rush to get dressed. I have found the solution to the time problem. I try to buy things that coordinate with everything like navy, black, red and white. These basic colors will mix and match with the other warmer colors. Even this sounds too difficult at times. When I have days I don't want to put any effort into coordinating, I have my back-up wardrobe. I keep a few dresses which are the kind you can throw on over your head and not have to worry about the monthly water retention or the extra pounds gained during the depressing seasons. I'm talking about "The Holidays." Make sure the dress is loose-fitting and long enough so it doesn't matter if your socks match or not.

Don't get behind in your child's healthy beginning

Your child's most precious asset is good health — and you can help preserve it.

Young children need lots of love, nutritious food, and guidance to grow up strong and happy. They also need medical attention from the time they are born — including immunizations to prevent serious diseases, like polio, tetanus, hepatitis, measles, mumps, German measles, chicken pox, meningitis, and diphtheria.

Mountain Health Services urges you to develop a relationship with a family doctor or pediatrician for all your child's routine and emergency health needs.

The longer the better because you can hide your footwear, too. During the winter, foot gear can be a great expense and I've found that you can wear the big ole' felt-lined boots and even those tall waders when it really gets cold. But, people stare when you wear them in warm weather and to work. You must be really careful to at least coordinate the less attractive footwear with hats and gloves.

As you can guess, I didn't have much West Bethel news this week and am praying someone calls me soon as I feel I am revealing too much about myself.

Donald and I went to Auburn, Mass., Saturday to attend his mother's funeral. I met Helen Conant this spring when we visited her on the Cape. She was an active 84-year-old great-great grandmother who raised three children, taught school, founded a newspaper -- the Auburn News (which is still in print), traveled the world and lived a full life. Just days before she died, she told me during a phone conversation that she wanted me to send her a few iris bulbs because she shared my love for gardening. I promised that I would.

Nancy Martens had a full house up on Sparrowhawk Mountain last weekend. Nancy's mother, Deva DeVincentis, her two aunts, Gina Chivaroli and Annie Lomanno of Quincy, Mass., were joined by Dottie Brown, and Betty Menchi from Buffalo, N.Y. Betty and Dottie are Deva, Gina and Annie's first cousins. The weekend reunion was wonderful. Saturday was spent browsing in the shops in Bethel, sightseeing up to Sunday River and the Covered Bridge and ending with a delicious dinner at the Bethel Inn. Sunday started out with an early breakfast of fresh fruit and bagels. Since Dottie and Betty had never been to L.L. Bean's in Freeport, they needed to get on the road early. Everybody enjoyed shopping in Freeport and ended the day with a wonderful lunch of New England lobsters and fried clams.

For more information, contact Trudy Akers at 392-3157, Betsey White at 392-

1291, Norma Farrington at 392-2652, or Bev Swan at 392-4742. To all friends, family, townspeople and organizations: Marshall, Vickie and Megan Meisner wish to express their thanks. "We want to thank you for your support and encouragement concerning Marshall's accident. All have been great and it has been uplifting to realize how people truly are in times of hardship. During this time we have needed comfort and support and the town of Andover has given us these things willingly and in abundance. Thank you for your thoughts and prayers, they are greatly appreciated."

Barbara and Shirley "Bud" Meisner recently returned to their home in Taveres, Fla. They have been visiting with their son Marshall in town, and daughter Marcia Raymond and family in Newburyport, Mass.

Mr. and Mrs. Richard Johnston of Spanaway, Wash., visited with her cousins, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Currier in North Jay recently. They also visited with cousins Mary Agnes Walton and Louise Powell of Dixfield. They lunched with Dot Wing of Rumford and attended the Mead picnic with Dottie and Roger Mills. Polly and Dick were guests of Gordon and Virginia Justard at their Mooselookmeguntic camp for several days.

Special thanks and recognition to the community gardeners for this year's blooms. The new flower garden situated at the Post Office intersection certainly beautified the triangle with bright color.

Eighty-eight attended the annual meeting of the 1918 Club at Valle's in Portland on Sept. 13. Officers were elected to serve for two years: president, Violet Swain of East Andover; vice president, William Smith of Andover. The secretary lives in Kennebunk and the treasurer in Westbrook. The "Maine" newsletter editor and historian lives in Brunswick. The Holiday Dinner meeting will be held on Nov. 15 at the same location. On Oct. 7 there will be a luncheon at Teena's in Rumford. Area members and guests are invited to join the officers that noon.

Debbie Dunham enjoyed a trip to Cleveland, Ohio, this summer with her brother Alan and mother and stepfather.

At the two library fundraisers held last week at the home of Jim and Rosemary McLean in Bryant Pond, 67 guests contributed $880.00. These were the first of many events to be held in the area over the next nine months. If the community can raise $20,000 by July 1998, the Stephen King Foundation will match that amount.

The October meeting of the Historical Society will feature Michael Hathaway talking about the Bryant Pond Phone Company. He authorized the book "Everything Happened around the Switchboard."

Franklin Grange 124 met on Monday, Sept. 15, with 18 members present. It was voted to put in a chairlift. The program was on friendship. Opening song; opening thought, "A Friendship Poem"; Laura Hutchins played the accordion; poem by Russell Yates about Friends; Dot Canwell told a story and whistled a song; Connie Tutlis gave a poem, "The Friendly Thing to do." Anna Woodworth was presented a plant for her 82nd birthday and Beatrice Farnum was signed a card on her 85th Birthday. Each one described their friend in one word. Bertha Benoit read a poem she wrote for her friend Peggy Blake; closing thought "to have a friend you have to be one"; closing song.

Don't forget the Sno-Mobile Club's lawn sale at the Grange Hall on Oct. 4 at 10 a.m. All those wishing to give or donate articles, etc., should bring them as early as possible to the hall. We appreciate it very much. If you wish to have a table of your own, it can be had for $5.

The Message of the Day was, "What is Wisdom?" from Proverbs 2:6: "For the Lord giveth Wisdom; out of his mouth cometh Knowledge and Understanding." Responsive readings were given by Bob Munro, and Gil Seely gave a special, "Are you a Christian? Are you religious?"

Betsy Clark, Gil Seely, Eleanor, Davis and Bea Lowell were at Oxford Lanes in Rumford one day last week to do some bowling for fun. On the overall scores, Betsy was high on both the singles and triples. The first string was won easily by Betsy; she beat Gil by only one pin on the second string; and she beat Gil by seven pins on the third string. She had one strike and one spare. Raymond Eichel of Worcester, Mass., spent the Labor Day weekend with visiting parents and grandmother at the Wentzell cottage.

Martha Jane Costello and Fannie Smith from Berlin, N.H., and Kay Reid of Gorham, N.H. stopped by recently to call on Mrs. Millie Wentzell.

Barbara Grandin from Englewood, Fla., is visiting her brother and sister-in-law, Jay and Hope Herr.

Mr. and Mrs. John Hindman and her mother, Mrs. Williamson, from New Hampshire spent the holiday weekend with Mrs. Elmira Doyen. I returned home late last Sunday after visiting for two weeks with my brother and his wife in Unity. While there I visited one afternoon with Mrs. Marguerite Scott, formerly of Bethel. Also, we spent an afternoon at Belfast City Park and called on friends in Camden. You'll find dollars always do better when accompanied by some sense.

To benefit the Albany Improvement Association there will be a supper at the Hunts Corner Church on Saturday, Sept. 27th, at 5:30 p.m.

I think summer has stolen silently away. It went over yonder across the hills and beyond.

Autumn has come whispering and has spread her soft veil everywhere. Her beauty we are sure to remember and keep in our hearts, as late as December.

The sun shines pure and clear today, over the low wooded hills, giving them a dreamy look. It's neither too hot nor too cold, just pleasant.

Late September is a stream of wonder, changing from day to day. I'd like to turn back time and take a long walk. I never cease to admire the mountains rising high and note the grandeur when trees put on their spectacular carnival, blending in a radiant design.

I walked some and sat beneath a pine to look at the changing valley. It was restful.

Tiny lazy white clouds floated along.

October is coming and as it approaches color changes each day. It is a radiant month, crisp air, and swirling leaves. It's an artist's paradise of wonder and beauty, I have often wished I could be one.

Ann Holt had a birthday dinner on Sunday for her father. His wife, Fay, and children and three sisters and husbands and children came. It was a delightful day in every way.

Milton and Eleanor have made many visits on friends and neighbors since their return home. We are all pleased to have them with us again.

Rena Curtis and members of the family have had several gatherings during the week. One get-together at Walter's camp numbered some over 50.

HEALTHY LIVING

A Guide to Dental Health

Submitted by: Bethel Family Dentistry

Can some foods harm my teeth?

The foods you choose and your eating schedule can be important factors in how much dental cavities (tooth decay) you have. The reason is simple: everything you eat passed through your mouth where it is available for use by plaque.

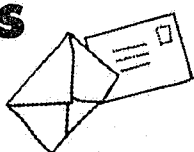

Dental plaque is a thin film of bacteria that forms on everyone's teeth between brushings. When you eat foods that contain carbohydrates (sugars & starches) the bacteria in plaque start to produce acids that attack teeth.

Treating the high number of bacteria causing the infection, not only filling the damaged tooth surface, is the change in managing dental cavities. This modern approach includes eliminating bacterial breeding grounds by placing restorations where needed and prescribing antibacterial rinses that lower the number of disease causing bacteria.

Plaque removal remains a key component in the battle against cavities, there are no quick and easy solutions in resolving dental infections. Your dental team may ask you to participate in this modern approach to cavity management. It is important for you to understand the destructive force is an infection caused by bacteria and is therefore considered a disease process. Controlling the number of acid producing bacteria is a team effort and you play a major role in reducing the disease process with effective home care, reducing exposures to sugar, & by eliminating bacterial breeding grounds.

Beware Of Your Child's Sniffles

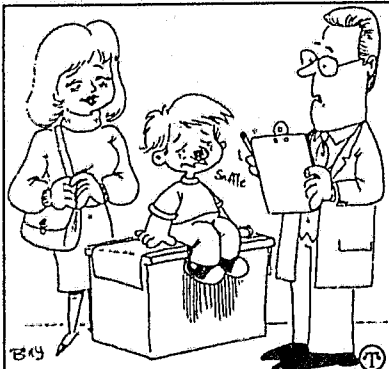

(NAPS)—It is often hard for parents to differentiate the symptoms of common early-season colds from other conditions. The sniffles you attribute to your child's first sustained indoor exposure to a roomful of children, or the allergy symptoms that coincide with the peak of ragweed season, may actually be sinusitis.

Because sinusitis, an infection of the nasal cavities located above, below and behind the eyes, can be a complication of a cold or allergy, the symptoms of sinusitis in children are often misdiagnosed as a lingering cold or allergy. Sinusitis affects more than five million Americans under the age of eighteen each year, and countless school days are lost as a result of it.

"An unresolved cold or upper respiratory infection is the most common cause of sinusitis in children. Ten percent of colds in children lead to sinusitis. A sinus infection can develop if the congestion, coughing and sneezing of a cold are not properly treated," says Michael Kaliner, M.D., Medical Director, Institute for Asthma & Allergy at Washington Hospital Center, Washington, D.C.

Complete this checklist to determine if your child has sinusitis:

- Your child has lingering seasonal allergies.
- Your child has recurring colds that don't go away completely.
- Your child's nasal discharge is dark green or yellow.
- Instead of improving, your child's symptoms have been getting worse.
- Your child has unexplained headaches, toothaches, earaches or facial pain.
- Your child has a dry, persistent, non-productive nighttime cough.

Your child's sniffles may actually be sinusitis. See your doctor for effective treatment.

- Your child has a loss of a sense of smell.
- Your child has bad breath.

If you checked two or more of the above, your child may have sinusitis, which requires physician supervision and treatment.

A variety of medications are available to treat the symptoms of sinusitis. Your child's physician may prescribe a course of pediatric strength medications, including antibiotics to sterilize the sinuses and free them of infection, and decongestants (e.g., Syn-Rx) to help relieve congestion, shrink swollen nasal tissue and promote drainage. In more severe, or recurring, cases of sinusitis your child's physician may suggest a topical nasal corticosteroid (e.g., Dexacort® Turbinaire®) to lessen and/or inhibit nasal swelling.

If your child's cold lingers for more than ten days, see your family doctor or pediatrician. If allergies are present they may want to have an allergy evaluation. A proper diagnosis and effective treatment can enable your child to feel better and perform better at school or play.

MOUTH CARE

Brighten Your Career Chances: Take a Toothbrush to Work

(NU) - Good teeth affect nearly every aspect of our lives — even our work. Why? Because a good smile helps you make a good impression, and that's important for your professional image.

According to a recent survey, 40 percent of respondents ranked "smile" as the first thing they notice about a person at work. The survey was conducted by International Communications Research for Oral-B Laboratories, a world-leading toothbrush manufacturer.

But most Americans don't brush their teeth at work. Yet, it's throughout the workday that many people eat meals and snacks and drink sugary beverages that put teeth in the greatest danger of a plaque attack. The survey revealed that nearly 50 percent of the respondents eat three times or more during a typical workday.

"It's important to brush your teeth during the workday, in addition to after breakfast and before bedtime," says Phuong Pham, a spokeswoman at Oral-B Laboratories. The company has teamed with the Academy of General Dentistry in sponsoring "Brushing at the Office," a program designed to educate consumers about the importance of brushing during the workday.

"People need to make having a toothbrush on hand during the day a lifelong habit," Pham says.

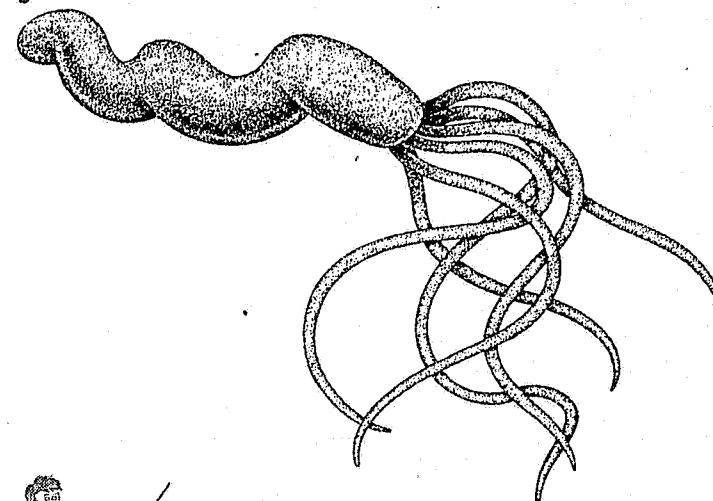

It will take that kind of daily lifetime commitment to defeat plaque, the sticky, colorless film that forms constantly on teeth. While eating, the sugars and starches in food begin fueling plaque bacteria, resulting in an "acid attack" on the tooth enamel. Bacteria can become well-adhered to tooth surfaces.

And while visible evidence of food may disappear, plaque bacteria continue to grow. Hours later when you eat again, the process repeats itself, exposing teeth to a near-continuous "acid bath" that, over time, leads to cavities.

Eventually, plaque can build up and harden into tartar, which can cause gum irritation. That can cause tooth detachment and, ultimately, tooth loss.

"Simply slipping a toothbrush into your purse or briefcase and remembering to brush at work may reduce plaque buildup and keep you smiling for years," Pham says.

Contrary to popular belief, most ulcers are not caused by your boss. Unless, of course, your boss is a bacterium.

Hi, I'm Dr. Dan, gastroenterologist and spokesperson for the American Digestive Health Foundation®. Research has discovered that nearly all ulcers are caused by this guy, the bacteria, H. pylori — not stress or spicy foods as previously thought. More importantly, H. pylori can be treated using common medications.

American Digestive Health Foundation

And once treated, your ulcer is gone! Just think, no more excruciating pains waking you up in the middle of the night. That's got to be worth looking into! If you've been diagnosed with an ulcer, experience sharp or burning stomach pain, or frequent indigestion, ask your doctor about H. pylori and call for more information.
1-800-NO-ULCER. No more ulcers, no more pain.

Can Vision Problems Slow Your Child's Academic Growth?

(NAPS)—A comprehensive eye exam is an essential part of a child's curriculum. A startling 50 percent of reading problems in school-aged children occur as a result of undetected vision problems. According to the Vision Council of America, one in four children between 5 and 12 has a vision problem that may affect their educational performance.

Parents should watch out for these signs of possible vision trouble, says Dr. Jack Weber, O.D., Education and Research Director for Marchon Eyewear:

- Excessive rubbing or blinking of eyes.
- Covering one eye then another when reading.
- Placing head very close to the book.
- Squinting; complaints of headaches after reading or watching television.
- Unequal tracking of moving objects.
- Omitting, repeating and mis-calling words or confusing similar words.
- Poor eye hand coordination.
- Family history of poor vision or eye disease.

Should your child need glasses, the experts at Marchon Eyewear offer these suggestions:

Frame Selection—Let your child try on several pairs, including brand names such as Marchon's Mickey & Co. Children can identify with friendly characters such as Mickey Mouse, Donald Duck and Minnie.

Appearance—Metal rims are the rage as are traditional gold and tortoise coloring for kids, 7 and older. For younger kids, an added punch of color is splashed on frames with confetti-like patterns of bold pinks, reds, blues and violets. A favorite Mickey & Co. frame is colored "blurple," a combination of blue and purple.

Durability—Impact-resistant frames are a must for active youngsters. Lenses made of poly-carbonate material are shatter-resistant.

Fit and Comfort—Eyes should be centered with the lens (the optical center) for optimum correction effectiveness. The top of the frame should follow the brow line. The frame itself should not rest on the cheeks, and the temples should gently curve around the ears without pinching.

Safety Features—Spring hinges provide an extra measure of comfort and durability, adjustable unisfit bridges gently hug the cartilage and comfort cables have a rubber tubing to cover the metal ear tip and prevent slipping. Flexible shape-retaining frames made of Plexon®, can be twisted or bent, yet automatically spring back to original shape and can withstand tough handling and play.

Proper Frame Care—is essential as smudged, dirty lenses can distort vision. Lenses should be cleaned with a soft cloth to avoid making scratches.

This week at the

Moses Mason House

All members and friends of the Bethel Historical Society are reminded that the next meeting will be held on Thursday, Oct. 2, in the meeting room of the Dr. Moses Mason House, beginning at 7:30 p.m. Featured during the program portion of the meeting will be the annual "What's It." Those attending are urged to bring an unusual artifact from the past to discuss during this time. Following this, an oral history panel discussion will take place on the 1947 fires that created so much havoc in so many parts of the state 50 years ago this year. Persons with memories of those difficult times are especially urged to attend to share their recollections.

Joyce Butler in her book, "Wildfire Loose: The Week Maine Burned," described the scene in October 1947 when Maine experienced the worst fire disaster in its history. Bone-dry conditions paved the way for fires in many parts of the state. Twenty-four-hour fire watches and patrols were common in many communities. Even with all those precautions over 200,000 acres, three quarters of them forested, burned. Nine communities were leveled, and four others severely damaged. The fire was blamed for the deaths of 16 people; it left 2,500 homeless, and destroyed 1,068 homes. To learn more about this era, come and hear from those who lived through it. Everyone is welcome.

The 1997 Annual Fund Campaign of the Bethel Historical Society has reached the $6,500 level from 264 donors. Among the most recent contributors are: Frank and Bea Lowell, Newry, in memory of Danny and Lola Forbes; Clayton and Lola Crockett, Bethel; Robert and Mary Eichel, Worcester, Mass., in memory of Raymond Wentzell (1923-1947); David and Jeanette Nichols, Milan, N.H., in memory of Joseph and Tina Nichols; Kathy M. Hooke, Bethel; Thomas H. Mitchell, Culver City, Calif., in memory of Bernice Haines Noyes (1906-1972); Jean K. Owen, Bethel; Arthur J. Smith, San Mateo, Calif., in memory of loved ones; William H. Howe, Ashton, Ontario, in memory of Robert Decatur Hastings (1899-1992). Much gratitude is expressed to all of the above for their generosity. Anyone wishing to make a tax-deductible contribution should send it to the Bethel Historical Society, P.O. Box 12, Bethel, ME 04217-0012.
